National Rifles' Hall presented a busy appearance today. Under the supervision of the committee of arrangements, assisted ty twenty young ladies, the hall was tastefully decorated with American and English flags, as these are the two nations represented in the convention. A table was provided on the floor for each state and Canadian delegation, as headquarters, bountifully supplied with requisites for correspondence, etc.

At the lower end of the hall the ladies had an abundance of ice water, and two large bowls of lemonade, furnished without charge to all convention visitors. Also a post office station, registry table, information booth, etc.

A pleasing feature was the presence of six little girls, and as many boys, from Company A, Loyal Crusaders (the juvenile Society of the Sons of Temperance), to act as pages during the sessions. The girls were dressed in pure white, having tiny slik American and C. E. flags in their hair, and the boys wore white suits, and all twelve wore the beautiful Loyal Crusader badge of red, white and blue. They had with them a banner, the design of which was a shield representing the piedge of total abstinence and a water hij to symbolize purity of heart and life, and drawn sword as a sign of their warfare against strong drink and all evil habits. The banner also has the motto of the order, "Love, Purity, Fidelity." Each one of the company carried a small

KNOCKED OFF A YEAR. George McCauley Sent Up for a Long Term in the Penitentiary.

George McCauley, who has, the police au thorities claim, spent the greater part of his life in prison, was sentenced by Judge Cole today to seven years' imprisonment in the Albany penitentiary at hard labor, for assaulting Detective Sutton the 6th of last month with intent to kill him.

On the day in question Lieutenant Amiss, seeing McCauley on Louisiana avenue be-tween 9th and 10th streets in company with a boy, directed Sutton to lock him up. The detective placed him under arrest, when McCauley, failing to brain Sutton with a heavy cane, drew a revolver. But, just as he attempted to fire it against Sutton's he attempted to fire it against Sutton's stomach, Amiss struck the weapon down, thereby saving the detective's life.

The jury quickly convicted McCauley, but recommended him to the mercy of the court. In imposing sentence Judge Cole remarked that he was at a loss to understand on what the jury based their recommendation. But, while he saw no reason for it, he would, nevertheless, knock off one year from the maximum penalty of eight years. He thereupon gave McCauley seven years seven years for a Case of Hazing.

An interesting story comes from West Point, in regard to an alleged prize fight between two cadets, in which a Washington boy carried off the "honors." The contest was between a yearling and a plebe, and is said to have occurred last Friday behind the overgrown rampart of Fort Clinton. According to the story, a plebe named Michael Lucey of Chicago was being drilled by 'Yearling" Rea, and the latter is said to have so aggravated Lucey that Lucey struck his drill master on the head with the butt of his musket, knocking him down and cutting a deep gash over Rea's eye. This was not reported to a tactical officer, and the "yearling" class determined that its honor had been assailed, and Lucey was in-fermed that he would have to fight. Lucey is nineteen years old, weighs 198 pounds, and stands 5 feet 11 inches in height. It was evident that Rea would be no match for the young Chicago giant, for he is a little fellow, and therefore the "yearling" class selected Cadet Heintzleman of Washington to uphold its honor in the ring. Heintzleman is a son of Major General Heintzleman, and is nearly as large as

These two youths met in the ring on Friday morning, stripped to the waist, and surrounded by some sixty cadets. Seven rounds were fought, in which the major general's son displayed superior science, with the result that Lucey was knocked down and out. He was smuggled into the hospital, a sorry-looking young man. His nose was dislocated and his features badly battered. As the two puglists were not de-tected while fighting, they will not be punished. The "yearlings" have been avenged, and as Lucey stood up and took his medicine bravely he will not be further molested while at the academy, having given sufficient proof of his courage.

An exaggerated case of hazing is also reported at the Naval Academy, the perpe-trator of which received, at the hands of trator of which received, at the hands of Cel. Ernst, superintendent of the academy, the most severe punishment ever accorded any of its students for a similar offense. The offender was Cadet Robert Cherry Foy of Alabama, a member of the third or "yearling" class, and his victim was a ninéteen-year-old youth named Prentiss, from western New York. The hazing consisted of putting Prentiss through the fasisted of putting Prentiss through the fa-tiguing exercise known as the "spread eagle," which consists of bobbing up and down as quickly as possible, keeping all the muscles of the legs and body stiff, and bending only the knees. It is an exercise that is given only in homeopathic doses by the instructors, a minute being considered sufficiently fatiguing for any cadet.

Lieut. Dyer, one of the instructors, was a

Lieut. Dyer, one of the instructors, was a quiet spectator of the proceedings. He was on the scene for a brief period unobserved, and heard Foy lazily order the "plebe" to vary his performance with the "quickstep." This is an equally tiring exercise, the man having to lift his knees alternately, and as quickly as possible, to the height of his waist like a prancing horse. The strongest waist, like a prancing horse. The strongest man could hardly keep this up for more than five minutes without extreme physical

When Lieut. Dyer had seen this continue when Lieut. Dyer had seen this continue for several minutes, a glance at the "plebe's" face told him it was time to interfere. As he entered the tent Foy sprang to his feet, while the piebe turned toward him and then fell in a faint to the floor. Water was dashed in his face, but as he did not revive he was carried to his say. did not revive, he was carried to his quar-ters for treatment.

Foy was immediately placed under arrest.

It was nearly an hour before Prentiss re-gained full consciousness, and even then he was incoherent in his utterances. It was subsequently learned that he had been ordered by Foy to report at his (Foy's) tent that afternoon, and blindly following the traditions of the academy, he had done so. Then Foy had put him through the exercises, which had continued something over an hour before Lieut. Dyer's arrival. Cadet Foy was brought before Col. Ernst and did not attempt to defend himself. The colonel was disposed to regard the offense as very serious, for he sentenced Foy to one year's close confinement. This is regarded as an astonishingly severe punish-ment, for it carries in its wake the loss of furlough and all social recreations.

Work upon the Stevens public school terminated suddenly this morning, when the bricklayers refused to continue unless they were paid their back wages.

Some time ago the Commissioners awarded the contract for remodeling the Stevens school building to T. E. Cabell. Cabell, it appears, sublet the contract for brick work to a man named Johnson for $4,200. He agreed, however, to pay Johnson at the agreed, however, to pay Johnson at the end of each month for the amount of work performed, according to the estimate of the building inspector, less 10 per cent, which was to be retained until the final completion of the work. The first payment of $450 was promptly paid, as was the second, which amounted to $550. On July 2 a voucher went through the Commissioners office for $4,368, but none of this was paid over to Johnson, although he claims that $1,250 is due him. For two weeks the brick-layers and other laborers employed by the subcontractor have not been paid. The reason, as stated by the subcontractor, is that he has been unable to receive his money from the contractor. Today the men refused to continue work unless all back wages were paid. The contractor, it is said, offered each one $5 in settlement, but they refused and all work was sus-

Subcontractor Johnson went at once to Subcontractor Johnson went at once to the Commissioners' office, and laid his claim before the Commissioners, who ex-pressed surprise that such loose methods of payment were allowed to prevail. They summoned the contractor to appear before them at 3 o'clock this afternoon, to explain why the subcontractor had not been paid. There is still a retain fund of 10 per cenin the hands of the Commissioners, and it may be that they will order this paid over to Johnson, in order that the work may
